What is

The Connected Boat?

The Connected Boat is a platform that integrates all of a boat's systems into one intuitive interface, connecting boat owners with their boats at any time, no matter where they are. The system consists of hardware aboard the boat that is connected to systems like batteries, bilge pumps, motion sensors, and more; and a mobile app that is downloadable on any smart phone. Essentially, Siren Marine gives your boat an app.

How does it work?

The MTC

The MTC is the “brain” of the Siren Marine Connected Boat® system. The MTC connects directly to a 12 or 24V battery, which powers the device and enables battery monitoring. The MTC also features a built-in GPS, which allows for precise positional tracking and geofencing.

Sensors

Boaters can use both hardwired and wireless sensors to further expand the system. The MTC features a built-in terminal strip that accepts wired connections, and additional wireless sensors can be added to monitor even more systems and communicate with the MTC via a sub-GHz radio frequency.

The App

Arguably the most important piece of the Siren Marine experience is the App. The Siren Marine App gives you access to your boat’s critical information in one clean, intuitive interface. Now checking on your boat is as easy as glancing at your phone.

Every MTC requires a subscription in order to send data through this cellular connection. Subscriptions start at just $15/month and can be purchased directly through the Siren Marine website.
